CBIF Raymond L. Watson Prize
in Community Design

Description
The Raymond L. Watson Prize, in the amount of $1,000, is given for work that demonstrates excellence in COMMUNITY DESIGN, with a particular emphasis on physical form. (This would include communities at a variety of scales, from a small cluster of dwellings up to new towns.)

Eligibility
Master of Architecture students, registered full-time, are eligible to compete. You may apply for this award an unlimited number of times, but you can only receive the award once.

Requirements
• Departmental registration and eligibility form.

• An anonymous portfolio of 1-2 projects from work done as a graduate at U.C. Berkeley. (See department’s portfolio rules.)

• A one-paragraph description of the project(s) and its contribution to new ideas about community.

• Email a few paragraphs on yourself: Something that describes your involvement in the field of architecture (e.g. statement of purpose/biography - this is not part of the portfolio application, but will be sent to CBIF when you win.)

• Group entries are accepted.

Deadline
12 pm, TUESDAY, JANUARY 20, 2009
Submit your portfolios to the Graduate Office in 370 Wurster Hall.
